THE COWBOY'S LAMENT

AN eastern newspaper very truly says:

It is something heartening in this day of million-dollar bruisers to find gallant company of men and women offering physical prowess, mental dexterity and raw courage for the sake of offering. The Western riders who opened the rodeo at Yankee Stadium are possessed of so strange a viewpoint that they can hardly expect to be understood by the New Yorker who follows sport. They may be adept at riding and bull-dogging, but they are curiously inept in modern methods of winning glory. For one thing, the cowboy is too contemptuous of his own attainments. If one of them proposes to bull-dog a steer and possibly spend the next four weeks in a hospital reflecting upon some mistake in tactics, he makes no great hullabaloo over his task. No three hundred thousand guarantee is posted, no long conferences are held before signing a contract, no defiances, evasions, explanations. The public doesn't care for his sport to a great extent because he makes little money out of it.

It has been an axiom since Emerson that if you can build a bigger megaphone or hire a better press agent the world will make a beaten path to your door. Cowboys need a megaphone and a press agent badly. They need a campaign for public recognition of the cowboy as the artist among sports. Possibly he should write his experiences for the sporting page, beginning with a reason for his not bull-dogging any steers this year, and concluding with a promise to ride a bucking horse next July for one billion dollars at ringside.

AN OFF-HAND JUDGMENT

THERE came under the eye of this page the following news story the other day:

"No matter what troubles a man gets into; no matter what difficulties assail him; no matter if he is absent for unknown cause—his dog is his faithful friend. An incident showing a dog's devotion occurred at Sonoma recently when Charles Miller was arrested on a charge of reckless driving, following an accident in which he ran down and injured an aged San Francisco man named Flannery. Miller's automobile was left in a local garage, his bird dog with it. From that time until Miller was released on a six months' suspended sentence, a lapse of seventeen days, the dog remained in the machine and steadfastly refused to let anyone come near it. During all that time it was fed by garage attendants who threw food to it from a safe distance.

"A few minutes after Miller was released, having promised to pay damages to Flannery for his injuries, the long unhappy bird dog was jumping up at his master in wildest joy. Even as the machine pulled out of the garage the dog was still pawing Miller and trying to lick his face in token of his appreciation for Miller's return after such a long absence."

This newspaper does not have any knowledge of the character of the motorist who ran down the San Francisco man, the off-hand judgment of the writer is that there are traits about him which will over-balance any of the short-comings he may have. This page has watched owners of dogs in all walks of life and invariably has discovered that the owner of a dog, whose dog worships him as the one in the news story is said to, is not all bad and, if the case of Charles Miller were to be followed up, it is very probable it will be found he will do exactly as he told the judge who placed him on probation he would do.

IT SHOULD COME TO PASS

THAT during the Pow-Wow week every resident of Ukiah should make it a point to attend the Fair every day.

That every owner of a home should see that his porch light is burning each evening.

That all lawns should be nicely cut and the flower bushes and shrubs trimmed.

That all citizens should act as single committees and be good fellows with strangers.

That the windows of every business house in the city should be attractively dressed up and made brilliant every night.

That no one should countenance an over-charge of any kind during the Fair.

That rooms in private residences should be placed at the disposal of the Chamber of Commerce.

That the rules about early closing of stores should be so modified as to make it possible for some stores to remain open each evening, later than usual so that visitors, especially those who come in cars, may be able to make emergency purchases.

That, in order to take full advantage of the opportunities presented, local merchants should put on sales and, through the columns of The Dispatch-Democrat and The Republican Press, let the public know business is being transacted in Ukiah.

KILLED HUNTING DEER

While hunting on the old Badger ranch on Cobb Mountain, Lake county, Rollo G. Murphy, a resident of Los Banos, was shot and fatally wounded by his brother-in-law, Roy Martz of Sebastopol. Mr. Murphy died a short time later at the toll house on the summit of St. Helena Mountain from the loss of blood, while enroute to Calistoga for medical aid.

Mrs. Frank Updegraf has been enjoying a visit from her mother, Mrs. Hoxie of Covelo, who left Tuesday of last week for her home. She was accompanied by Miss Leola Fish.

AT HOLLYWOOD

This collection already has been enriched by the truthful account of the distinguished New York theatrical magnate who told a well-known playwright that he didn't care to consider putting on the latter's newest piece called "The Dauphin," because he was sure the American people would never care for a play about a fish.

Then of course there is the tale told of that other and equally prominent manager who, on hearing a synopsis of a dramatization of "David Copperfield," said he liked the story and asked who the original author of the story might have been; and then, when the adaptor told him this honor had belonged to Charles Dickens, said promptly:

"Well, you better get in touch with this here Charley Dickens and bring him in to see me and we'll talk over the royalties and if the guy ain't unreasonable, why we'll fix up a contract and go ahead with the production."

But the contemporary authorities agree that for a wide and comprehensive and all-embracing ignorance of the classics these dignitaries in the realm of the spoken drama are not to be mentioned in the same admiring breath with some of the leaders of the moving pictures industry. A man lately back from sinless Hollywood brings with him two ancedotes regarding a strictly self-made gentleman who holds an important, indeed a commanding position, in one of the biggest of the studios. This gentleman chooses subjects for screening; he casts the companies; he passes on details of location, of costuming and of treatment; he bosses the directors and he issues orders to the actors.

Not so very long ago, he was told that the editorial department of his plant looked with an eye of favor on the project of making a film version of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." Promptly he put his foot down on it.

"Nix," he said; "we positively wouldn't do it. The public is fed up on these here college plays with football players for heroes."

A few days later he personally was supervising the taking of certain scenes of a comedy. In the script prepared from the author's scenario by the contnuity writer he came upon a line to the effect that the leading woman should be pictured as seated alone in a deep reverie.

"Come with me, you," he said, indicating the assitant director, the leading lady and the camera-man. "I know just the place for taking this here piece of business."

He loaded the three of them into an automobile, got in himself and bade the driver take them along a certain road winding into the foothills above Los Angeles. After an hour or so of steady travel they came to where a narrow but precipitous canyon cut into the contours of the landscape. Here the leader of the expedition gave orders to halt.

"There you are," he stated, with a wave of his arm, "you could look for a week and nowhere you wouldn't find no deeper reverie for her to be setting in than what this one is."

DRAWING THE LINE

An actress who had retired from the stage and bought a little house in the country, decided to start a chicken farm.

Accordingly, acting on the principle that all big businesses have small beginnings, she bought a hen and a setting of thirteen eggs.

As she had no knowledge of poultry at all she wrote to a poultry journal asking how long the eggs would take to hatch out. The paper replied:

"Three weeks for chickens and four for ducks."

Some weeks later she again wrote to the paper:

"Many thanks for your advice. However, at the end of three weeks there were no chickens hatched out, and, as I did not want any ducks I took the hen off!"—Poultry Journal.

INVESTMENT SUMMARY

¶ A first mortgage on the entire Electric and Water properties of this Corporation, together with approximately 7,000 acres of land and timber comprising Water Shed and Reservoir site, including distributing systems of both utilities in the town of Willits, Mendocino County.

¶ These properties have a total valuation of $240,000, according to the minimum appraisement of Mr. R. W. Van Norden, Mr. C. N. Loveland and Mr. Edward Morris, civil and electrical engineers.

¶ A resume of earnings from the operations of the electric light service and the water service in the town of Willits over a period of 20 years as conducted by the Willits Light & Power Company, whose properties are being purchased by this company, indicates by conservative estimate that three times present bond interest has been earned annually. This figure is obtained after deducting cost of operation from the gross revenue of that period.

¶ Franchises granted by both the county and town of Willits extend for a period of 30 years. There is no competition in either the water or electric business, and all steps in connection with this financing have been taken under the jurisdiction of the Railroad Commission of California, whose policy has always been to protect franchises thus approved.

¶ The sources of water supply and electrical energy are adequate and dependable.

¶ An annual sinking fund will be established sufficient in size to redeem approximately all the bonds by lot at call prices and retire the entire issue by maturity.

We offer these bonds when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to certification by the State Banking Department

Old Covelo Resident Died at School Center

Dr. Walter Hargrave, oldest son of the late Charles Hargrave of Pine Grove, died suddenly in Berkeley Thursday, according to a telephone message received by Stellar Lodge of Odd Fellows of Mendocino City, of which he was a member. No particulars regarding his death were received. Dr. Hargrave made his home at Covelo where he has been practicing dentistry for a number of years. He was well-known on the coast, having been born at the Hargrave homestead at Pine Grove and attended school when a boy at both Mendocino and Caspar. He fitted himself for a teacher and successfully passed the county teachers' examination in 1890 following which he taught in the grammar schools of this county. In 1893 he took a course and was graduated from the Stockton Business College. Later he took a three-years' course in the dental department of the College of Physicians and Surgeons at San Francisco which he completed in 1901. Returning to Covelo he took over the principalship of the grammar school at that place. He also devoted some time to the practice of dentistry. Always interested in eudcational work, he served as member of the Board of Education for many years. Dr. Hargrave is survived by his wife and one daughter, five sisters and two brothers. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of many friends.

Freak Storm Rages Throughout Humboldt

The litter of tree limbs, automobiles, railroad ties, brush and camping tents which was created by a freak windstorm of hurricane violence in the region of Stafford, thirty miles south of Eureka last week, has been cleared away sufficiently to admit of the movement of traffic on the state highway, which was the center of the disturbance. The wind started a fire in the brush near the Percy Brown mill, and this created a counter wind and a swirling tornado, which picked automobiles off the highway and deposited them many feet away. One redwood tree three feet in diameter was torn up by the roots, and one man reported he was carried bodily several feet by the wind. A number of buildings were unroofed. The fire was subdued as soon as the wind subsided.

The middle of the past week Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Tracy and children passed through Ukiah on the way to the Tracy ranch at Cummings where they were a few days, returning Sunday to Ukiah.
